

Maintenance Attendance Justification Letter

Subject: 2026 Boeing Digital Services Users Conference Attendance

Dear [Manager Name],

I'd like to attend the 2026 Boeing Digital Services Users Conference, taking place October 20-22, 2026, in Budapest, Hungary, where airline leaders and operational teams from around the world will share best practices, product innovations, and strategies for improving airline performance across maintenance and flight operations.

I believe the event presents an opportunity to bring back practical ideas, industry benchmarks, and operational insights that could help our team improve performance and maximize the value of our Boeing Digital Services investments.

As a maintenance-focused attendee, key benefits include:

- Learning how leading airlines are improving reliability and reducing operational disruption
- Identifying opportunities to increase maintenance efficiency and streamline maintenance workflows
- Exploring how peer airlines are applying predictive maintenance and operational intelligence to improve aircraft availability
- Gaining visibility into upcoming Boeing product innovations and roadmap investments that may impact our future planning
- Improving adoption and utilization of Boeing Digital Services solutions already deployed within our organization
- Benchmarking our maintenance processes, strategies, and operational performance against industry peers
- Participating in training and best practice sessions designed to help airlines maximize operational value

The conference includes customer success stories, product deep dives, roadmap discussions, and hands-on training designed specifically for maintenance and technical operations professionals.

Following the conference, I will share key learnings, recommended actions, and opportunities for improvement with the broader team to help ensure the organization benefits from the knowledge gained.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
